"Blackbords." The feature at the Albambra today, is a Lasky feature in the Idol." A drama of the stage and a thick Laura Hope Crews appears in her former Brondway success. "Blackbirds" is a tale of adventure with the scene shifting from the Orient to New York and from high society to the underword. The plot is well developed, there is a strong and firdling climax and the ending is like that of any regular Lasky picture—thoroughly happy and satisfactory to the andlence. There is a lot of fine photographic work in the picture and the settings are all of the good Lasky type. Laura Hope Crews has the same magnetic personality and the same force that has characterized her in all her former successes. Thomas Meighan gives a fine and contiocing impersonation and the entire support is good. Advertisement.
